

NACA - Who We Are

NACA was formed in 2003 to promote the common interests of our members—Tribally-owned corporations, Alaska Native Corporations (ANC), Native Hawaiian Organizations (NHO), or supporting organization. Our united voices promote the benefits of using Native-owned firms with high quality products and services in the federal government marketplace and protect the SBA's Native 8(a) program.

The Native 8(a) program is helping more than any other tool to develop sophisticated business capacity in Indian Country. Membership is open to any Tribe, ANC, or NHO involved in government contracting. Ask about the many benefits of being a member—advocacy, training, networking, and a united voice. Please contact us for more information. We welcome your involvement. For more information on membership contact membership@nativecontractors.org.

NACA - Building A Record of Success

NACA brings a collective voice to Capitol Hill on public policy issues related to procurement and Native economic development. Federal agencies, Congress, and other organizations look to NACA to provide information about Native American businesses and the Native 8(a) program. NACA is educating key policy makers and building a positive Congressional record on the Native 8(a) industry. We are working aggressively—developing tools to improve standards and practices and gathering reliable data for needed program improvements. NACA is building a record of success for Native-owned firms.

New tools, data and resources for NACA members to utilize, build capability, and expand opportunity.

Advocating Aggressively

NACA educates policy makers about the benefits of federal contracting—putting people to work, building sustainable businesses, and cultivating economies in our remote communities. We track and monitor legislation that impacts our members.

Protecting Business Opportunity

The SBA Native 8(a) federal procurement contracting program is an increasingly important source of revenue, capacity building, and jobs for Alaska Native corporations and tribal governments. The program is “a hand-up not a hand-out,” and works effectively to build sophisticated business capacity. The program works for remote economically distressed Native communities. The Native 8(a) program is just beginning to have a positive impact—it’s time to strengthen the program.

Strengthening Alliances

NACA is on the move—building alliances to shape policy and promote economic development in Native communities. We have unified advocacy positions on Native 8(a) issues with other Native organizations and other small business trade associations on legislative bills. NACA and our allies mobilize our championships and respond swiftly to proposals. Our united voices are being heard!
